VISIT OF THE 2024 NOBEL PRIZE LAUREATE IN ECONOMICS AT THE UDS - CAMEROON

The Rector of the University of Dschang hereby informs the public in general and the university community in particular that Professor James Robinson, laureate of the 2024 Nobel Prize in Economics, shall pay a visit to the University of Dschang on June 4th 2025.

Accompanied by Professor Pierre Nguimkeu of the Department of Economics in Georgia State University (Andrew Young School of Policy Studies) in the United States of America, he shall preside over a scientific day to the benefit of scholars, researchers and students who will converge in Dschang for the occasion. The day's activities comprise, among other things, a lecture to be given by the Nobel Prize laureate, and a scientific discussion with Professor Nguimkeu. Specific meetings may be held with Deans of faculties and those in charge of various training programs in economics on topics related notably to innovation and the teaching of this discipline in the university. The main concern of the scientific day is to contribute to the consolidation of the North-South academic and intellectual dialogue.

The Rector calls upon everyone who is interested in this historical visit to contact the organizing team and get their scientific concerns included in the agenda. They should contact the following organizing focal points: Professor Christian Zamo Akono (Tel. 677694868); Professor Georges Wandji (699835017); Professor Clovis Miamo Wendji (Tel. 699329706).
